

ISN Frontiers Abstract Embargo Policy

All abstracts submitted to the meeting are considered confidential from submission until the date and time when ISN makes the abstract publicly available. *

All accepted and confirmed abstracts will be published as an open-access supplement to Kidney International Reports (KIR) prior to the meeting and as a poster at the meeting. A selection of abstracts will also be presented as oral abstracts in a scientific session.

Abstracts submitted to other meetings in addition to the ISN Frontiers Meeting are exempt from the embargo provided that they do not include updated information and on the declaration that re-submitting the abstract is permitted by the organizers of the previous meeting.*

The ISN Frontiers Meeting supplement to KIR will be visible at the meeting website prior to the meeting, and after the event. All times mentioned below reflect local times of the official meeting location.

Abstract embargo dates

The abstract embargo will be lifted when abstracts are published as an open-access supplement to Kidney International Reports (KIR) as detailed above.

For late-breaking clinical trial abstracts:

- Abstracts (as submitted during the submission process) will be published as an open-access supplement to Kidney International Reports (KIR) prior to ISN Frontiers Meeting as detailed above.
- Information supplementary to the submitted abstract; additional analysis, commentary, or updated information from individuals and companies involved in the study, is embargoed as follows:
 - Supplementary information to abstracts selected for a poster presentation is embargoed until the first day of the meeting.
 - Supplementary information to abstracts selected for an oral presentation is embargoed until the start of session.

Confidentiality policy

Abstracts submitted to the meeting are considered confidential by the ISN, the authors, and research sponsors until publicly released as described above. Prior to the poster/oral abstract presentation, the presenting author, co-authors, research sponsors and journalists may not:

- Make public the abstract content

- Publish, present, or provide abstract content to media outlets
- Use the information for trading purposes or provide it to others who can use it for trading purposes
- The organizers reserve the right to provide a press release a few days before public release to a selected list of journalists contractually obliged to respect the meeting embargo policy.

If details or relevant information from the abstract or additional study data from the planned presentation are disclosed in advance of the meeting release, the abstract may no longer be eligible for inclusion in the meeting program.

Confidentiality policy exemptions

Publicly traded companies may be granted an exemption to the embargo rules if legal counsel has advised that some data from the abstract must be disclosed to comply with national or international regulatory bodies. If exempt, the company may release specific data from the abstract on a case-by-case basis without voiding the eligibility for presentation at the meeting.

To request an exemption, send an email to frontiers@theisn.org with detailed information about the release's content, the required data, and a legal counsel letter showing how and why disclosure of information is necessary to comply with regulatory bodies. If you have any questions about abstract embargos or applying for an exemption, please email frontiers@theisn.org.

Media policy

Any media outlet or press representative wishing to attend the meeting or obtain official press releases from the meeting organizers must strictly comply with all imposed embargoes.

Press representatives who receive embargoed material from the organizers understand that it is for their individual use and will not distribute the embargoed information to anyone else before the official release. Embargoed material includes - but is not limited to - original journal articles, abstracts from scientific meetings, written news releases, audio news releases, video news releases, slides and any other materials associated with the scientific content being presented or published.

Embargoed material, results, and information relating to sessions at any meeting or event held by the meeting organizers are strictly confidential and cannot be disclosed in any manner or for any purpose before the official lifting of the embargo.

Coverage of information that goes beyond that which is contained in the four corners of the abstract (e.g., additional analysis, commentary, or updated information from those individuals and companies involved in the study) is embargoed according to the following criteria:

For poster and oral abstracts, the embargo on information supplementary to the abstract; additional analysis, commentary, or updated information from individuals and companies involved in the study is lifted as per the Abstract Embargo Dates listed above. It is imperative to contact the ISN for queries on embargoes before releasing any content to third parties. For questions on media policy, please contact isnevents@theisn.org.
