Candidate's Statement

Pandemic of SARS-COV2 infection proved that human health crisis passes through the geographical boundaries and is a global issue. Chronic kidney disease (CKD) as a growing disease will be a health threat in future decades. As a nephrologist who worked not only as a physician but also as the head of the task force in education and research programs in university, I am very concerned about Acute Kidney Injury and CKD prevention. Education and research in this field will be my main area of focus. A scientific committee in the region consisted of experienced and young nephrologists are fundamental for idea sharing, collaboration, and goal achievements. It is obvious that every movement is possible with the support of the International Society of Nephrology. I am delighted if I could follow the ISN mission in the region.
